My redesigned seal is made from two 2.75 inch circles modeled from a jar lid. I folded one circle to create a little lip that protruded off the seal to act as a pull tab.

The tab protruding off the side of the seal is a signifier to the affordance of grasping and pulling. This design should give the user proper leverage to open to seal, unlike the current design. The tab can be folded back to fit under the bottle lid and folded forward to be used to remove the seal, meaning the tab affords folding.
